News/Events

1) TIAS Kone Foundation Scholars at Risk Fellowship Programme
Special Call for Applications from scholars affected by the crisis in Ukraine.

TIAS wishes to assist scholars who have been affected by the current crisis in the Ukraine. It therefore invites applications for one (1) Collegium and one (1) Postdoctoral Fellow positions for a two-year period starting as soon as possible (subject to authorisation by relevant Finnish authorities).

Application period: 22 April – 11 May 2022

Please note that applications to this Call are restricted to scholars who have been displaced by the current crisis in Ukraine and who have applied to Scholars at Risk for scholar at risk status. All applicants must have a Ph.D. and TIAS regrets that it is unable to assist other scholars.

TIAS gratefully acknowledges the support of the Kone Foundation for these Fellowships. TIAS welcomes applications from all disciplines within its five constituent faculties (Economics, Education, Humanities, Law and Social Sciences). Selection of successful applicants will be on the basis of academic excellence.

Please note that it is necessary to complete every part of the application and provide full details of what is requested. We reserve the right to reject incomplete applications.

Please find additional information on the call here.

2) Visiting lecture by former EU Commissioner Cecilia Malmström: "Democracy, War and a New World?"

The former European Commissioner, former Member of the European Parliament, and former Swedish Minister for European Affairs, Dr Cecilia Malmström is visiting the university for a public lecture next week. She will deliver a visiting lecture on the theme of "Democracy, War and a New World?" on Wednesday May 4, at 12.15. The event is open to everyone and will take place in the Lecture Hall U3039 of the Main Building of the University (Older side of the Main Building, entrance via Unioninkatu 34, 3rd floor).

<https://tilavaraus.helsinki.fi/en/city-centre/main-building-fabianinkatu-33/main-building-u3039>

The visiting lecture is organized by the Master's Programme in European and Nordic Studies as a part of a course on the European Union. Everybody is warmly welcome to attend this public event and no registration is required. This is an onsite event only. For more information, please contact Posdoctoral Fellow Sanna Salo (sanna.salo@fiia.fi) or University Lecturer Timo Pankakoski (timo.pankakoski@helsinki.fi).

Brief CV of the speaker:

Cecilia Malmström was a European Commissioner from 2010 to 2019, first responsible for home affairs and, from 2014 to 2019, for trade policy. She led the trade negotiations with the Mercosur countries, Canada and Japan. She was the Swedish Minister for European Affairs (from 2006 to 2010) during Sweden's Presidency of the Council of the European Union in 2009, responsible for the EU Baltic Sea Region Strategy. Malmström was a Member of the European Parliament between 1999 and 2006, during which period she was, among other responsibilities, a member of the Committee for Foreign Affairs and the Subcommittee on Human Rights. Malmström is a non-resident Senior Fellow with the Peterson Institute for International Economics in Washington, DC and she holds a doctorate from the University of Gothenburg.

3) Russian Law Talks Call for Participation

The Putin's ongoing aggression against Ukraine has made us all to re-think the role of our scholarship and research in current events as well as to reflect on what topics, issues and themes have been overlooked or marginalised. Development of Russian Law program has had a hard look at our past conferences and research projects and realised that we have never paid much attention to the region as a whole. DRL would like to launch a new series of Russian Law Talks and call it Post-Soviet Legal Choices Talks, in which the main focus will be on post-soviet legal developments in the former USSR republics - now independent states. The first talk will involve a discussion on Georgia, Ukraine and Moldova: the trajectories of post-Soviet legal reforms and constitutional development. We are looking for speakers who would like to join us in discussing these countries. The second talk will be on Central Asian Choices in legal development.

If you are interested or have someone in mind who could be a good speaker, do not hesitate to share this invitation, contact us and fill in this form before May 15.

Call for Papers

4) Call for Papers: Aleksanteri Conference 2022 "The New Era of Insecurity: How Russia's War in Ukraine Changes the World"

21st Annual Aleksanteri Conference

THE NEW ERA OF INSECURITY: How Russia's War in Ukraine Changes the World

Dates and venue: The conference is being planned to be held in-person from 26 to 28 October 2022 and will be hosted at the University of Helsinki, Finland. We will provide a limited number of panels with the possibility to arrange their panels virtually, and participants with the possibility to follow the conference online.

Organiser: Aleksanteri Institute, University of Helsinki, Finland

#Aleksanteri2022

Russia's unprovoked and illegal military attack against Ukraine in February 2022 has caused immense destruction and human suffering that will leave deep scars in Ukraine. This war will also have long-term repercussions for European and global security. The world community has condemned Russia's actions and agreed upon sanctions that target Russia's ability to continue the war in Ukraine. Consequently, Russia's economy has taken a blow that, together with the political consequences of Russia's war, may change Russia's status in the world. At the same time, the Kremlin has introduced new regulations to suppress civic activism in Russia, resulting in a mass exodus of people from the country. Consequently, we have decided to reformulate the original conference theme about Russia and global insecurity into a specific question on how Russia's war in Ukraine will change the world.

The 21st Aleksanteri Conference to be held in October 2022 provides a forum to seek answers to this and other relevant questions with researchers specialising in Russia's foreign and military thinking, as well as information, cyber and energy security. The conference also welcomes research contributions on politics, security and civil society in Ukraine, as well as in Russia, and Eurasia.

Russia's war in Ukraine will also change the way in which current and future scholars will study the region. The suspension of cooperation between Western and Russian research institutes and the forced evacuation of scholars from Ukraine means limited access and resources for conducting research in Russia and in Ukraine. At the same time, we need to critically assess the theoretical and methodological underpinnings guiding the research that will help to understand this new era of insecurity and its meaning for Europe and the world.

Taking into account the principles of engagement agreed upon by Universities Finland UNIFI and guidelines of the University of Helsinki on collaboration with Russia and Belarus, the conference organisers wish to note the following:

- No proposal or presentation advocating for Russia's war on Ukraine will be accepted.
- Colleagues based in Russia or Belarus will participate in a personal capacity only, meaning that we will remove institutional affiliations from the conference programme.

The conference organisers encourage Ukrainian scholars to participate in the event. For this purpose they are exempted from paying the conference fee.

Invited keynote speakers and programme:

Roy Allison, Professor of Russian and Eurasian International Relations, University of Oxford, UK

Margarita Balmaceda, Professor of Diplomacy and International Relations, Seton Hall University, USA

Mark Galeotti, Honorary Professor, University College of London, UK

Tatiana Kastueva-Jean, Director of Russia Center, French Institute of International Relations, France

Tamara Martsenyuk, Associate Professor, National University of Kyiv-Mohyla Academy, Ukraine

Sergey Utkin

Carolina Vendil Pallin, Deputy Research Director, Swedish Defence Research Agency, Sweden

Ayşe Zarakol, Professor of International Relations, University of Cambridge, UK

In addition to plenary sessions, the conference features scientific panels, roundtables and a poster session. Complementing academic activity, the conference programme will include various activities for networking: cultural events, evening receptions, a guided walking tour in Helsinki and visits to museums and the Slavonic Library. We will also organise a book exhibition at the main conference venue.

Conference schedule and deadlines:

- Deadline for submitting paper, panel and roundtable proposals: 29 May 2022
- Notification of acceptance: 30 June 2022
- Online registration and registration fees due by: 24 August 2022
- Conference programme published: by early September 2022
- Conference: 26-28 October 2022

Submissions:

The deadline for submitting paper, panel and roundtable proposals is 29 May 2022.

All abstracts must contain the following information to allow a sound referee review:

- Abstract title
- Abstract structure: aim, background, methods, findings and conclusion/recommendations
- Abstract text in English within the given word limits
- All authors' and co-authors' names and affiliations
- Contact information (name, email address) of corresponding author(s)

Individual paper proposals: Please submit your individual abstracts of 300-500 words via the paper submission form. The organisers will form a limited number of thematic panels from the highest-rated individual proposals. We expect that these panels will take place in-person at the conference venue.

Panel proposals: Panels should consist of three paper presenters, a chair and a discussant (or four paper presenters and a chair). Panels must aim for an international composition. Panel sessions will take place from Wednesday to Friday at the conference venue. As a rule, one of the speakers of the panel can participate remotely, while others will give their presentations in-person at the conference venue. Chairs should be present at the conference venue. We will also provide a limited number of panels with the possibility to organise their panels completely virtually. Parallel virtual sessions will take place on the Wednesday and Thursday afternoons. Preferred option is to organise in-person panels at the conference venue. Please submit your panel proposal, including an abstract of 300-500 words and information on the form of participation, via the panel proposal submission form.

Roundtables: Each roundtable will feature a structured discussion on a timely theme or problem that requires a more open format of debate than a conventional paper session. Roundtables must have a moderator and three to five speakers. As a rule, one of the speakers of the roundtable can participate remotely, while the others will give their presentations in-person at the conference venue. Moderators should be present at the conference venue. We will also provide a limited number of roundtables with the possibility to organise their sessions completely virtually. Parallel virtual sessions take place on the Wednesday and Thursday afternoons. Preferred option is to organise in-person roundtables at the conference venue. Please submit your roundtable proposal, including an abstract of 300-500 words and information on the form of participation, via the roundtable proposal submission form.

All abstracts will be reviewed and rated by scientific experts for abstract quality and presentation content. Notification of acceptance for paper, panel and roundtable proposals will be sent via email by 30 June 2022. Abstracts of accepted papers/panels/roundtables will be published on the conference website.

Registration rates:

Paper presenters, chairs and discussants: in-person participation 120 €

Paper presenters, chairs and discussants: online participation 60 €

Participants from Ukraine are exempted from paying the conference fee.

Guidelines for sessions:

Panel sessions will last 90 minutes each and shall be structured as follows:

Oral presentation: 15 min (in panels with 4 papers) or 20 min (in panels with 3 papers)

Discussant's comments: 10 min

Q&A: 20 min

The chair will introduce the panel and its participants, proceeding to make sure that time is allocated equally between individual presenters. The chair is responsible for providing equal participation for online and in-person presenters. The discussant will have 10 minutes to give their comments after all panellists have presented their papers.

Roundtables will also last 90 minutes. Please be mindful of time constraints so that we can achieve a fair allocation of time between participants.

General information:

As of April 2022, the conference is being planned to be held in-person with a limited possibility for online participation. We will follow the safety protocols that are effective at the University of Helsinki during the conference. More information will be available when registration opens in June.

The working language of the conference is English. Unfortunately, no translations can be provided. There is a PC and projector in every lecture hall.

Participants are requested to make their own arrangements for travel and accommodation. Costs related to participation are also the responsibility of the participant. Information on hotels will be provided later on the conference webpage. For Helsinki hotel and tourism information, please see <https://www.myhelsinki.fi/en/info>

Participants and observers who do not wish to give a paper or organise a panel or roundtable are also welcome to take part in the conference. All conference participants are required to register.

5) Call for papers of the fifth volume of the European Yearbook of Constitutional Law: "Constitutional law and the algorithmic state"

CALL FOR PAPERS

EUROPEAN YEARBOOK OF CONSTITUTIONAL LAW (EYCL), VOLUME 5 (2023)

CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND THE ALGORITHMIC STATE

The European Yearbook of Constitutional Law is pleased to announce a call for submissions for its fifth volume (2023) on Constitutional law and the algorithmic state.

The emergence of new, machine-oriented technologies surpassing individual human capacities has brought the administrative state to the next level: the algorithmic state. In such a state, algorithms are used to support or automate regulation and administrative decision-making processes. Algorithmic law- and decision-making ranges from the use of simple, code-driven, rule-based algorithms, such as (blockchain-based) smart contracts, to complex self-learning algorithms based on 'big data' and artificial intelligence. Algorithmic law- and decision-making impacts constitutional values and fundamental principles of constitutional law, such as legality, the separation of powers, fundamental rights, democracy and effective judicial control. Whereas on the one hand digitalisation impacts constitutions and constitutional values, constitutions and constitutional values on the other hand may also affect digitalisation by means of regulation. The primary goals of this volume of the EYCL are (i) to interrogate the constitutional challenges arising from the algorithmic state, and (ii) to analyse and develop potential responses and remedies that constitutional law can provide to face the algorithmic society.

The EYCL therefore invites scholars to address the theme of this call for papers and welcomes contributions devoted, but not limited to the following:

- the effects of digitalisation and new technologies on the structural aspects of states, such as the separation of powers and checks-and-balances;
- the effects of digitalisation and new technologies on fundamental rights, such as (but not limited to) the right to privacy and freedom of expression;
- the impact of the attenuation of the traditional distinction between rulemaking and decision-making due to the rigid, automated application of algorithmic rules on the level of discretionary power of administrative authorities and on the level of deference of (administrative) courts;
- specific (disruptive) technologies, such as artificial intelligence, blockchain, robotics, the automation of justice, or specific case studies of any of these technologies, and their effects on constitutional law;
- normative counterreactions to face the challenges of digital technology, including digital constitutionalism;
- contributions that more broadly discuss the regulation of technologies and/or regulation by technologies (by-design, law as code).

Authors are warmly encouraged to take a multi- and/or interdisciplinary approach. We also welcome publications that take (or combine) different methodological approaches, such as legal doctrinal research, comparative constitutional legal research or empirical qualitative or quantitative research.

DEADLINE FOR PROPOSALS: 1 June 2022, although earlier submissions are encouraged.

PROPOSAL SUBMISSION: Proposals of 350 to 500 words should be submitted to eycl@uvt.nl. Please put "Proposed paper, volume 5" in the subject line of your email. Successful applicants will be notified by 1 July 2022. Complete papers must be submitted by 1 December 2022. Manuscripts should be no longer than 10,000 words, including footnotes. In preparing their manuscript, authors should follow the EYCL Style Guide, which will be sent to them when notified about their successful application. Decisions to publish a submission are based on editorial and double-blind peer review.

ABOUT THE EYCL: The European Yearbook of Constitutional Law is an annual publication devoted to the study of constitutional law. The Yearbook provides a forum for in-depth analysis and discussion of new developments in constitutional law in Europe and beyond. Each issue is dedicated to a specific theme. The inaugural volume of the Yearbook (2019) was entitled ‘Judicial Power: Safeguards and Limits in a Democratic Society’, volume 2 (2020) was devoted to ‘The City in Constitutional Law’, volume 3 (2021) to ‘Constitutional Advice’ and volume 4 (2022) to ‘The Constitutional Identity of the European Union’. The Yearbook is published by T.M.C. Asser Press in cooperation with Springer Publishers. The Editorial Board consists of Prof. Dr. Jurgen de Poorter, Tilburg University (Editor), Prof. Dr. A.E.M. Leijten, Tilburg University (Editor), Dr. Gerhard van der Schyff, Tilburg University (Editor), Dr. Maartje De Visser, Singapore Management University (Editor), Dr. Maarten Stremmer, Maastricht University (Managing Editor), and Charlotte van Oirsouw LL.M., Tilburg University (Managing Editor).

Open Positions and Applications

6) Two PhD researchers in law and/or political science (ERC project EUDAIMONIA)

Two PhD researchers in law and/or political science (ERC project EUDAIMONIA)

See also: <https://euraxess.ec.europa.eu/jobs/762954>

Offer description

The University of Liège (Belgium, founded in 1817) has a long-standing tradition in cutting edge research in the field of European Union (EU) law. Within the “Cité” Research Unit embedded within the Faculty of Law, Political Science and Criminology, the EU legal studies research group presently constitutes an interdisciplinary team comprising about 15 researchers working on the intersections between EU law and related disciplines (economics, information technology sciences, social sciences).

As of September 2021, the group hosts the ERC StG project EUDAIMONIA (GA: 948473, <https://cordis.europa.eu/project/id/948473>). That project seeks to map the impact of European Union law obligations on national administrative organisation designs across 18 sectors influenced by EU regulation. More information on the group and the project can be found on https://www.eulegalstudies.uliege.be/cms/c_8012264/en/eulegalstudies-eudaimonia.

We are currently recruiting two PhD candidates having a Master in law, EU law, political science or EU studies with a sincere interest in the law and legal studies. The appointed candidates will contribute to analysing how EU legal obligations shape the design and operations of national administrations and take part in interviews and questionnaire preparation and analysis. They are expected to become the faces of the ERC project. We offer a PhD scholarship contract of up to 4 years and a competitive salary in accordance with the University’s salary scales. Candidates will receive a net salary of €2059 per month, in addition to full reimbursement of public transportation in Belgium and meal vouchers up to €76 per month.

Selected PhD candidates will have the opportunity to work on an important European research project, of which you will become one of the faces. They will have access to all facilities offered by the University, including professional and language training options (French courses, professional skills courses etc.).

Participation in and organisation of international conferences and networks will be encouraged and funding is available to make this happen. There may be additional opportunities to collaborate more closely with other researchers at the University of Liège as well.

More generally, the research team values a good work-life balance, flexible working conditions and on-the-job training. The research group undertakes to actively support the appointed candidates in gaining the necessary experience towards becoming an independent scientific researcher.

Qualifications

We are looking to recruit two candidates:

- holding a master's degree in law, European Union law, political science or EU studies. Additional practical experience is not required, but would be an asset;
- with a strong interest in the European Union and the ways in which its institutions and rules work, both from a legal and from a social science perspective;
- who are interested in and open to interdisciplinary research;
- who have an excellent knowledge of English;
- who are team players willing to work closely in a multinational research team;
- who have the potential to successfully publish academic papers or research in top-rated journals or collections in her/his field of expertise;
- who are willing and able to conduct interviews in different Member States and complete research stays there (especially in Portugal, Poland or Romania).

Additional requirements

The appointed candidates will be expected to take part in research stays (between two weeks and three months) and interviews in other Member States of the European Union. Travel and residence costs will be covered by the project.

English academic writing skills are a must. As we are a French-speaking University, some basic knowledge of French would be an asset, although not a requirement.

towards interdisciplinary research and a sincere interest in law and its role in organizing society would be assets as well.

Also desired, but not required

- Interest in and knowledge of either EU consumer protection or EU environmental protection;
- Knowledge of Portuguese, Polish or Romanian would be a strong asset.

Application process

Please send a full academic CV, two letters of recommendation and a motivation letter stating your interest in the project and your potential contribution (max. 2 pages) by email to the following address: pieter.vancleynenbreugel@uliege.be.

The deadline is 15 May at 11:59 PM (CET).

Selection process

- we will shortlist the applicants who appear to be the best fit with the project team and invite them for (online) interviews.

- review of applications will begin as of 15 May 2022. A decision will be taken early June and the candidate is expected to start on 1 September 2022 at the latest.

Additional information

For more information, please reach out to the project's PI, prof. dr. Pieter Van Cleynenbreugel, via pieter.vancleynenbreugel@uliege.be or postdoctoral researcher, Dr. Julien Bois, julien.bois@uliege.be.

7) Call for Applications: re:constitution Fellowships 2022-23 2022/2023 re:constitution Fellowships

We are delighted to share with you the new Call for Applications for up to 10 Fellowships for the upcoming academic year from October 2022 to July 2023 as part of the programme re:constitution - Exchange and Analysis on Democracy and the Rule of Law in Europe.

The Fellowships address early-career scholars and practitioners of law and neighbouring disciplines to pursue their own topical projects about the current development and challenges to democracy and the rule of law in Europe. They become part of a European exchange network of scholars and practitioners, building bridges between diverse personal backgrounds, disciplines and countries. The Fellows will receive a monthly stipend of €2,500 during a personal collaboration phase with institutions in academia and practice in EU member states.

The application deadline is 10 May 2022, 12 noon (CEST).

re:constitution is a joint programme of Berlin-based Forum Transregionale Studien and Democracy Reporting International, funded by Stiftung Mercator. The patron of re:constitution is Angelika Nußberger, Vice-President of the Venice Commission and Director of the Academy for European Human Rights Protection at the University of Cologne.

In case of questions, please do not hesitate to contact us: reconstitution@trafo-berlin.de

8) Postdoc Call: The institute for Futures Studies with the Migration Institute of Finland

The institute for Futures Studies together with the Migration Institute of Finland are hiring a postdoc for a project investigating ethnic stereotypes in Sweden and Finland, using quantitative and qualitative text analysis. The project language is English, but the successful applicant also needs to know Swedish and/or Finnish. Further information can be found here.

9) Call for Applications: 2 Vacancies at FIME for Either Doctoral or Postdoctoral Researchers

Fixed term: 1.1.2023–31.12.2024 (but possible to start the term already in autumn 2022)

Location: The Finnish Institute in the Middle East (FIME) in Beirut.

The Finnish Institute in the Middle East (FIME) is an academic institute that focuses on the study of Middle Eastern cultures, religions, societies, as well as classical and modern languages. The institute's sphere of operations covers the entire Middle East region. In cooperation with various universities, the institute supports Finnish research on the Middle East and offers teaching centered on various relevant topics. It also participates in public discourse carried out in Finland on Middle Eastern issues by providing research-based commentary. Working in FIME offers an excellent vantage point for research on the Middle East in Finland.

The positions are suitable for either postdoctoral researchers or advanced doctoral researchers.

The tasks are varied and demanding, and as such, to succeed in this role, the candidates must have previous experience, that includes but is not limited to:

- Working, interning, or conducting research in the Middle East as well as experience from multicultural contexts.
- Organizing international events.
- External communications such as blogs, podcasts, and social media.
- Excellent English and good Finnish skills are a must. Arabic skills are also appreciated.

Success in the role demands initiative, unprejudiced attitude, flexibility, and patience.

Work tasks, salary, housing benefits, duration of the term:

- 50% of working time will be spent on one's own doctoral or postdoctoral research. The other 50 % will include administrative duties, teaching, external communications, organizing courses and events as well as other tasks assigned by the director of the institute.
- Postdoctoral researchers are expected to conduct independent research.
- Salary of postdoc researcher is 2990 euros per month (gross).
- Salary of advanced doctoral researcher is 2730 euros per month (gross).
- In addition, the costs of living in Beirut are compensated up to 400 euros per month (taxable housing benefit).
- The position is fixed term 1.1.2023–31.12.2024. (It is possible to start already in October-November 2022.)

More information is available on The Finnish Institute in the Middle East and the Foundation for the Finnish Institute in the Middle East.

For any questions, do not hesitate to contact the Executive of the Foundation, Anu Leinonen (etunimi.sukunimi@fime.fi, +358 40 732 0776). Job applications with attached curriculum vitae, list of publications and research plan (max. 5 pg.) are to be sent by 15th May 2023 by email to Anu Leinonen. Doctoral researchers must include dissertation supervisor's reference of academic success.

Interviews will be arranged via Skype on Friday 20th May and Monday 23rd May 2022.

The Foundation's Board of Governors will complete selection in early June.

10) Open Application: Apply for a place in the International Master's program in Sociology of Law at the International Institute for the Sociology of Law

Apply for the International Master's Programme in Sociology of Law. This is a great opportunity for students to deeply engage with the lines of research by distinguished international scholars teaching in the programme.
