

나의 한국어 학습 과정 (My process of Learning Korean)

Lilit Khachatryan (AUA)

There are many young language learners nowadays and as they dive in the process of learning exotic and sweet-sounding languages at times they do not realize how that language changes their mind and soul, into a better and unique one.

I would be no exception to the huge group of young learners of Korean language and culture and I will not be the first one to speak big words about how Korean language has changed my life. Instead, I've chosen to tell about my process of learning Korean, the stages of amazement, despair and challenges I've gone, about how this language fills the souls of its learners with positive emotions and has a noticeably good impact. Meanwhile, I want to talk about the Korean pop culture, which brought many students into the Korean world, by bringing up my research done for my capstone project. I did a survey among Armenian and Korean citizens (170/103) about the Korean Pop culture and how the media helped Korea to rise and become known and loved by many of us. The results of the survey is interesting, as many of international fans learn the language just to become closer to this culture. Even though, Korea is famous for its economy and technology, Korean pop culture makes the country into the more known and the one that is desired to visit. Also, I would like to show a part of the documentary film named "Fanaticism," directed by me, and show how Korean pop culture has a positive impact on young generation and how it boosts the language learning process.

With this, I will try to prove my point that studying Korean language and becoming part of this country makes the learners to become better and stronger people and fight for something they want in their life, just like Koreans have done throughout their history.
