

THE FOURTH SECTOR AND TRADE UNIONS

TRADE UNION ORGANIZING AND CHANGING
CIVIC ACTIVISM IN THE EARLY 2000S

UNION MOVEMENT GOES SOCIAL MOVEMENT (AGAIN)?

” In the 2020s we need to find a solution, if we want to exist in the future. That is why we have built preparedness in a bottom up-manner, not top down. The trade union movement needs to re-build itself as a social movement from the workplaces upwards and not as a bureau or insurance company that people no longer recognize as their own.”

– Risto Kalliorinne, PAM, Kansan Uutiset 17.2.2020

BASICS: THE THREE SECTORS (+1)

1) Private/business/market sector
people as customers

2) Public/state/government sector
people as citizens (subjects)

3) Civil society,
"third sector", "nonprofit"
people as volunteer actors
(often in organizations)

+ 1) *the idea of a fourth sector
- the household.*

MAJOR CHANGES > NEW POSSIBILITIES

- The Globalization effect
  - Especially the consequences of www and digital natives
  - The spread of information: examples & inspiration; movements & networks >> instantly from local to global
- An ongoing transformation:
  - the Internet and social media enable new forms of organization and action as well as new roles for activists.
  - A democratization process or risks for civil society? - both views exist

TRENDS IN VOLUNTEERISM

(After Leo Stranius 2019)

- "popup - commitment": People attach themselves to meanings and phenomena rather than organizations. Actions are linked to individual life situations. Easy to join in, easy to leave (vs. long-term membership).
- Self-organizing: Individuals prefer to define the goals and forms of their own action. Social media and the networks it offers are of great importance. When more direct action is possible – what is the role of organizations?
- Volunteer action is "personified": Attention to inspiring individual actors rather than organizations and their "talking heads" – case Greta Thunberg
- Experimental attitude & moving fast: In a fast-changing environment, moving away from set plans and strategies
- Disappearing sectoral borders: E.g. volunteer work on business time. A muddling of sectors, the disappearance of or new possibilities for civil society?

A CHALLENGE FOR UNIONS

- Falling membership levels
Finland: Less than 60% unionized, top numbers in 1995.
Numbers falling internationally
– why are people not joining?
  - Coinciding with emergence of new forms of action and activism
  - Also e.g. the changing world of work
- The turn to organizing
in a number of countries / unions
– current trend, long history

WHAT IS ORGANIZING?

Don't panic,

ORGANIZE !

Parvessa on voimaa...

WHAT IS ORGANIZING?

- An attempt at a snowflake structure of active union membership
- Involves individual motivation and discussion, sometimes a mentoring relationship
- Importance of setting workplace-specific goals and achieving them

<https://share.america.gov/changing-world-with-snowflakes/>

Is this the answer for unions in a time of emerging fourth sector activity?

WHAT IS ORGANIZING?

- “People — and not just around election cycles — have been able to find power in building numbers by talking to people one person at a time(...) By working on changing one heart and mind, you build an exponential power base, and that’s how you change your environment and your world, ultimately.”

FEATURES OF THE 4TH SECTOR

Mäenpää&Faehnle
(forthcoming):

The fourth sector as

- communities that function outside of organizations
- self-organized and network-based
- utilize the Internet, social media, and open information
- primarily aiming for concrete cooperation to achieve goals arising from the community.

AND:

- more generally, hybrid network actors characterized by principles of openness, co-creation and sharing
- Also forms of action based on the use of internet and open information as well as co-creation and networks

FEATURES OF THE 4TH SECTOR

Rask, Puustinen, Raisio:

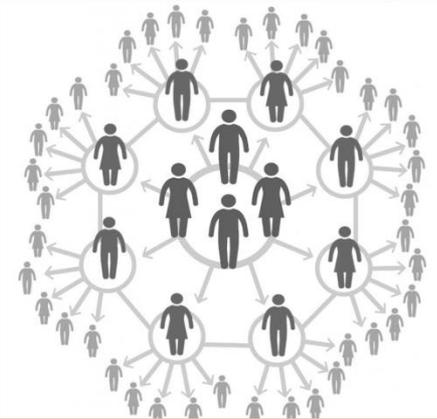

- the fourth sector should be seen as a special type of activity that is characterized by non-representational participation, use of open co-creation approaches that are combined with a prosocial, non-profit orientation and adaptive, context-sensitive strategies.

If trade union organizing brings about

- communities of active workers/union members
- that together formulate meaningful goals and
- cooperate locally to achieve them

and if this activity is framed within a trade union context

– is this an efficient “institutional” approach to new fourth sector realities and possibilities?

THE RESEARCH

- Three "cornerstones":
  - * fourth sector
  - * organizing
  - * participation/participants

- Are organizing efforts and 4th sector activities "geared towards" similar types of participant/participation?

THE RESEARCH

- History approach/themes:
  - Trade union / Industrial relations research & history (esp. Finland)
  - Social movement research
  - The development towards New Public Governance/Co-creation
- Main inquiry: *experienced change
  - what is attempted through organizing activities?
  - What has changed in the process?
- Focus areas:
  - 1) theoretical comparison
  - 2) trade union organizers and decision makers
  - 3) trade union members

THE RESEARCH

Focus areas (= articles or not?):

1) theoretical comparison

- fourth sector/organizing
- no organizing manual or set theory
- looking at teaching&practices

2) trade union organizers and decision makers

- What is the goal of organizing?
- What are the experienced changes?
- What is the ideal model of membership/participation?

3) trade union members

- What are the experienced changes?
- How do members wish to participate?
- What is the role of trade unions?

→ Examined through a 4th sector lens
